Lecture on India's Grand Narrative

Rajiv Malhotra was selected to deliver this prestigious lecture at India International Center, Delhi (Video). His topic was to discuss his next book, which deals with:

- Why Grand Narratives are important.
- Did India have a Grand Narrative in the past, and if so, what was it?
- How did this Indian Grand Narrative get disrupted: by Islamic, European and post-Independence Indian forces?
- What attempts were made by nationalists in the past 200 years to restore or reconstruct our Grand Narrative?
- What is the way forward?

Dharmic School of Thought

Rajiv Malhotra examines the Leftist schools of thought that emerged after independence as reincarnations of Marxism. He takes dharmic scholars to task for not doing adequate purva-paksha of these opponents, and proposes how we must proceed to develop our own new schools of thought. He says that while we like to honor our great thinkers by parroting their words, we are not continuing their method of thinking for relevance today. We need to adapt and develop new ideas based on old systems. Video.

Interview with Mohandas Pai

Rajiv Malhotra interviewed Mohanda Pai, a prominent industrialist, philanthropist and thought leader. Mohandas Pai analyzes the problems & solutions concerning India's education system, population growth and employment opportunities.

He says that economic growth of India should result in greater confidence in our cultural identity, including greater respect for our narratives such as Ramayana and Mahabharata. He also insists that we should assert the importance of our sacred sites such as Ayodhya.

While discussing the performance of Narendra Modi as Prime Minister, they both agreed that the new policies of Modi are on the right track for India's future.

Rakesh Kaul in his book "The Last Queen of Kashmir" has compiled a courageous history which every serious individual must learn. Video.
